FOREWORD

This publication contains a series of listings of collective agreements due to expire in 1984. The information is presented in two sections. The first section covers agreements of 500 or more workers in all sectors excluding construction with separate listings sequenced alphabetically by employer or employer association, by month of expiry/province/industry and by industry/employer. The second section lists all known collective agreements in the construction industry, regardless of the number of workers covered, sequenced alphabetically by employer within each province. Information in the listings also includes the location of the bargaining unit, the name of the union and its affiliation and the number of employees covered by the agreement.

The data in this report are obtained from the department's collective agreement library, based on information available as of November 30, 1983. They do not include bargaining situations carried over from 1983 or newly certified bargaining units. Also excluded are those agreements which are currently being negotiated and will have 1984 expiry dates. A listing of these will be published in the May 1984 issue of the Collective Bargaining Review. (The May 1983 Review listed 67 such agreements for the bargaining year 1983 in all industries excluding construction.)

The Calendar was prepared in the Collective Bargaining Division, Labour Data Branch of Labour Canada. Inquiries should be directed to this Division, at telephone (819)997-3890.

SUMMARY OF KEY NEGOTIATIONS IN 1984

Negotiators will face a heavier bargaining calendar in 1984 compared to 1983. Some 434 major non-construction agreements (1,032,000 workers) and 249 construction agreements (estimated 200,000 workers) are expiring in the coming year. There is currently a total of 1,000 major non-construction agreements (2.1 million workers) and approximately 350 construction agreements (estimated 275,000 workers) in force nationally. In 1983, there were at the same date, 339 known non-construction expiries covering 699,415 workers. The graphs which follow break down the agreements by industry and month of expiry.

It is anticipated that bargaining will continue the 1983 pattern of moderate wage settlements and emphasis on job security. Bargaining will take place against an economic background of persistent high unemployment, low (though increasing) capacity utilization rates, a stable inflation rate in the 4 to 5 percent range and a weak investment outlook in some sectors. Public sector restraint programs will be less extensive in 1984; the federal 6 and 5 program is scheduled to be phased out starting in June and the Ontario program has been replaced by a voluntary program re-inforced by a 5 percent ceiling on provincial funding and allocations.

By jurisdiction, the bulk of expiring agreements will occur in Ontario (174 agreements covering 321,440 employees), the Federal Jurisdiction, (42 agreements under the Canada Labour Code covering 217,890 employees and 29 public service agreements covering 119,790 employees), and Alberta (32 agreements covering 73,870 employees). Together, the 277 expiring agreements in these jurisdictions cover 732,990 employees or 71 percent of non-construction employees with agreements expiring in 1984.

Expiries by Industry

In Forestry, nine logging agreements (8,050 workers) will expire in the spring and summer of 1984. These contracts cover the wood operations of the major eastern pulp and paper companies coming back for negotiations in the year. Most of the mills are still operating below capacity. If, as announced, the European Economic Community reduces its import quota of newsprint, it will have an adverse economic impact on the maritime producers.

In Mines, Quarries and Oil Wells, about 50% of the workers covered by collective agreement (27,700) will be negotiating during the year, with a majority facing a background of depressed prices for the base metal industries. Five of the twenty agreements expiring in this industry are under Federal jurisdiction - Cape Breton Development Corporation in Nova Scotia, Denison and Rio Algom Mines in Ontario and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting (2 agreements) in Manitoba. Iron ore mining has not bounced back from the recession and their major customers, U.S. steel makers, have obtained concessions in their current contracts.

One hundred and eighteen major contracts covering close to 200,000 workers are expiring in Manufacturing in 1984. The Automobile and Parts industry constitutes the single largest group with 46,000 workers. Agreements with General Motors and Ford (43,000 workers) expire on September 14. A key factor in the negotiations will be the turnaround of the Canadian automobile industry since its 1981-82 slump. Sales and profits rose appreciably in 1983 as did the share of North American vehicles produced in Canada. The economic outlook for the industry is expected to remain strong in 1984.

In Eastern Canada's Forest Products industry, 27 contracts with 38,000 workers expire during the year. The bulk of the expiries will occur in April: Abitibi-Price, Canadian International Paper and Consolidated-Bathurst. The industry has not fully recovered from the recession and still has excess capacity. Results of the negotiations on the west coast will also impact on the settlements in the east. The Steel industry, under pressures from concession bargaining in the U.S. and strong competition from abroad, will be negotiating this summer.

The Food Processing industry has 11 contract expiries covering 18,800 workers, two thirds of which are in meat processing. The largest units include Canada Packers and Burns Meats whose agreements with the United Food and Commercial Workers expire in May and Schneider who bargains with its Employee Association workers in July.

In the Aircraft industry, De Havilland Aircraft (4,160 workers) in June and Pratt and Whitney (3,600 workers) in February will be negotiating during the year with the Auto Workers.

A total of 56 expiries will occur in Transportation, Communications and Other Utilities covering 257,300 workers, over eighty percent of which are under federal jurisdiction. A few large bargaining situations account for the majority of the workers who will be involved in negotiations in 1984. Negotiations in the Airline Industry this summer at Air Canada and CP Air (13,720 workers) will undoubtedly take into consideration recent developments in the United States. The industry is undergoing a difficult time in the U.S. with deregulation, increased competition and poor economic conditions resulting in concession bargaining. Elsewhere in the transportation-communication sector, major expiries include 79,000 CN and CP Rail non-operating employees at the end of December; 61,000 Canada Post employees (5 agreements with CUPW, Letter Carriers and others) with the majority of employees on September 30; 41,655 telephone employees in 7 agreements (the largest units being 23,000 Bell Canada and 12,000 B.C. Telephone employees); B.C. Maritime Employers Association and its 3,500 Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's employees and the Transport Labour Relations Association and its 3,500 Teamsters, both in December.

In the Trade sector, retail food (13 agreements) represents the largest group with 39,000 employees. The principal expiries will occur in New Brunswick (1,000 workers), Ontario (32, 955 workers), and Alberta (5,130 workers) and will involve Canada Safeway, Dominion, Loblaws and Steinberg stores.

In Community, Business and Personal Services, almost 276,000 employees (143 agreements) in both the education and health sectors will return to the bargaining table in 1984. Most of these negotiations will still be affected by some form of compensation restraint programs. The largest concentration of employees will be in Ontario (161,000), Alberta (31,000) and British Columbia (30,000).

In Public Administration, agreements covering 108,120 employees in the federal public service are expiring. Major groups include the clerical and regulatory (47,000 employees), general labour and trades (17,000 employees), engineering and scientific (7,540 employees) and general technical, social science support and technical inspection (5,785 employees). Of the 26 major expiries (81,665 employees) in the provincial public service sector, bargaining will take place in Newfoundland (5,000 employees), Prince Edward Island (3,000 employees), Nova Scotia (3,400 employees), New Brunswick (3,100 employees), Manitoba (13,555 employees), Saskatchewan (14,000 employees) and Alberta (36,400 employees).

Expiries in Municipal Administration will be light with only one-tenth of the employees covered by agreements expiring in the year. Major expiries include agreements covering 5,600 Montreal outside workers, 1,500 Quebec City inside and outside workers, 525 Hamilton outside workers and 515 Saint John outside workers.

The Construction Industry

The 1984 Construction calendar shows 249 agreements expiring during the year or approximately 70% of the universe. Some 203 of these agreements are terminating in April (see attached graph on page xii).

In the Atlantic Provinces, negotiations will take place in Prince Edward Island (9 agreements) in February, New Brunswick (25 agreements) in the spring, and Nova Scotia (2 multi-union agreements in Cape Breton Island) in July.

In Quebec, the province-wide agreement between the Building Contractors' Association of Quebec and the Construction Trades Council of Quebec (multi-trades) covering approximately 80,000 employees expires in April.

There are 86 agreements in Ontario currently due to expire during the year. However, in November 1983, in the Industrial, Commercial and Institutional Construction (I.C.I.) sector, tentative two-year agreements have been reached with six of the major trades representing about one-third of Ontario's 60,000 I.C.I. construction workers. The unions covered by the tentative agreements are the masons, operating engineers, plasterers, labourers, structural iron workers - rodmen and structural iron workers - erectors. The major mechanical unions (electricians, plumbers and sheet metal workers) are not involved yet in these early negotiations.

In British Columbia, 49 construction agreements expire during the year, while 35 agreements are up for renegotiation in Alberta.

Expiries by Month

The accompanying graphs illustrate the number of agreements and employees expiring by month in 1984. Major non-construction agreement expiries are clustered around March/April (22%), August (22%), and December (15%). In Construction, 203 agreements of the 249 expiries are in April.

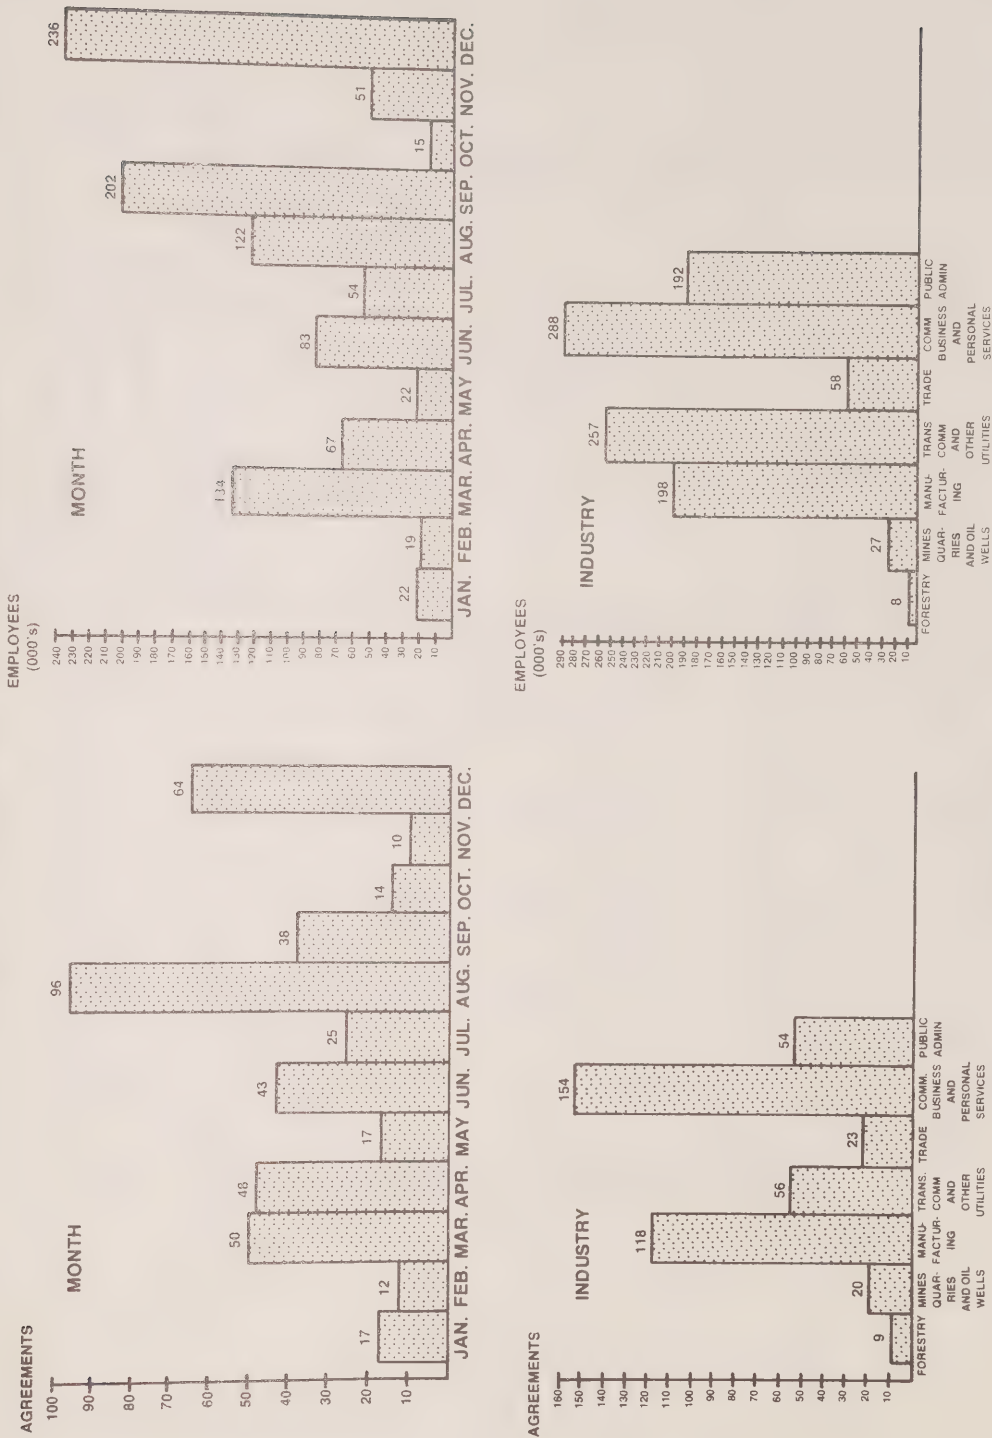

Additional Expiries

A few agreements which will expire in 1984 could not be included in the report because settlement data had not been reached when data collection was completed. Data on ten of the agreements subsequently became available, and are listed in Addendum "A".

Collective Agreement Reopeners

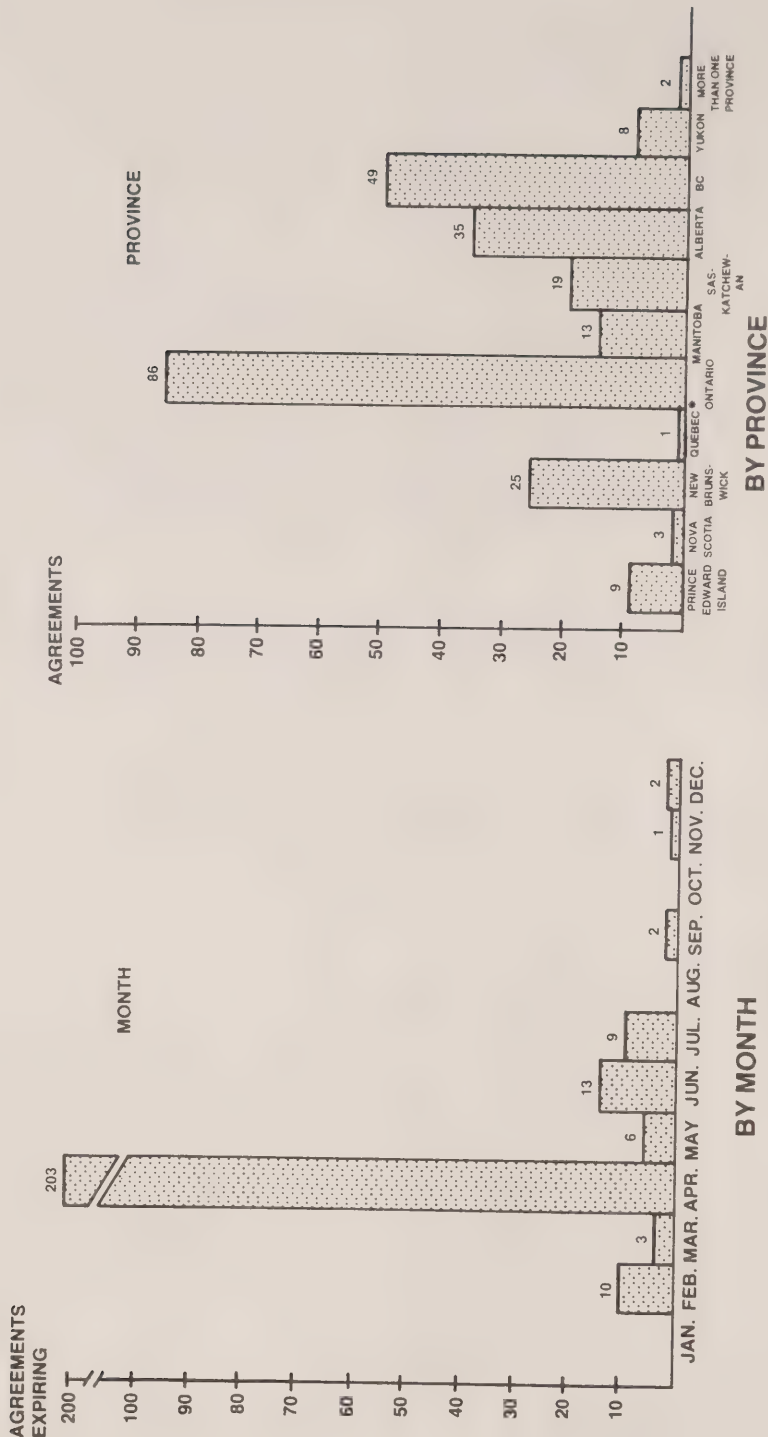

Departmental records show that fifteen major agreements provide for the reopening of specified clauses, usually wages, in 1984. These are listed in Addendum "B".
